Benchmarking Higher Education System Performance

The role of higher education is vital to our societies. Higher education contributes to human capital formation, to innovation and to the wider economic, social, cultural and environmental development.

As a result, higher education is rapidly expanding. Participation and attainment is increasing, the number of higher education institutions is growing and the sector serves a more diverse body of students. In addition, higher education is becoming increasingly global.

The sustained growth of higher education reflects its benefits. There are large incentives for individuals to obtain higher education qualifications. On average, higher education graduates have better labour market outcomes, they earn more than other workers, and individuals gain significant private returns on their investment in higher education.

Both governments and individuals are spending more on higher education. There are large incentives for society to invest in higher education, and countries generally gain significant public returns on their higher education. Read more <http://www.eairweb.org/category/eair-ing/>

EAIR journal – Tertiary Education and Management (TEAM)

Tertiary Education and Management (TEAM) is an international peer-reviewed journal intended to create a better linkage of research, policy and practice in teaching and learning as well as in higher education management, governance and organisation. Being an interdisciplinary and international orientated journal, TEAM welcomes research contributions that reflect upon, study or question main developmental trends and practices, and address current and future challenges in higher education. Articles submitted should as a consequence be written for, understood by, and be relevant for a multicultural, multifaceted and international audience.

In 1999, TEAM was in the 4th quartile for both Education and Organisational Behaviour and Human Resource Management. For the first time, in 2015 (latest available figures), TEAM is now in the 1st quartile for both fields. This means that is in the top 25% of journals by citation among all journals in those fields. This represents a recognition of the quality and interest on the articles published in TEAM.

Please consider publishing your best work in TEAM and thus continuously improve its quality and standing among readers by going to the following link <http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/rtem>

Please check SJR's website for more details: <http://www.scimagojr.com/journalsearch.php?q=144637&tip=sid&clean=0>

TEAM has been published since Spring 1995. It is published four times a year and exclusively only for EAIR members at no extra charges. The articles submitted will be evaluated by independent reviewers, the best articles will be selected for publication in TEAM.

For any questions please contact the Editor-In-Chief, Prof Dr Malcolm Tight, University of Lancaster, United Kingdom, t: +44-2476 52 38 09 email m.tight@lancaster.ac.uk

Call for EAIR Forum Host 2019

Have you or has your higher education institution ever considered to host one of the future EAIR Forums?

The annual EAIR Forum is the opportunity for researchers, practitioners and policymakers to get together, to exchange information, give or listen to presentations, network with colleagues from abroad and meet new and interesting people. EAIR invites you to consider hosting an EAIR Forum in your institution of higher education in your city for 2019. If you are interested, please submit a proposal to the EAIR Office before the deadline of 1 July 2017. Feel free to contact the EAIR Executive Manager, Gerlof Groenewoud (eaair@eaairweb.org) or the Chair Executive Committee of EAIR Attila Pausits (attila.pausits@donau-uni.ac.at) or visit the EAIR website <http://www.eaairweb.org/hosting-future-eaair-forums/>
